... * hawx looks for song * hawkx plays Song: Psychedelic tab pcpc - if you don't like the tune, it is the rules (after the chorus) that cause most of the problems A: This is how I would handle it. I think it is easier to just handle this with a relatively simple method and not one with many steps. One thing that you may want to consider is to have an event play the song at the beginning.

I'd start by having a simple method that can do one or two steps of this. public void handle(Song song, Player player) { player.playSong(song); if (song.getSeq() > 0) { for (Plane plane : planes) { // find the plane Plane firstPlane = planes.get(0); if (firstPlane.hasKey(song.getSeq())) { // remove that key from the plane firstPlane.removeKey(song.getSeq()); } } return; } // handle the rest of the song } Then in your main method you'd have something like: Player player = new Player(new Song("Psychedelic tab", Song.SongType.PLAYER_SING)); My experience is that I like to have methods that are as clean as possible. They're easier to reason about. This one just has a nice encapsulation feel to it. I'd also like to point out that with something like this, I would not say that the planes would be locked. They are controlled by the first plane you have. If you just unlock the first plane, the rest are unlocked as well. Q: Target 82157476af
